

F. Patrick Butler
"Cavorting With Strangers"

Want some table talk?
Some stories about the best and brightest in Paris that would make Madonna blush?

Read Butler's Cavorting With Strangers, a spicy buffet of biography, history, cultural critique, and fiction. Don't worry the stories are all true.

"Cavorting With Strangers: Great Ideas and Their Champions – Paris tells of one Charly Brooks, who takes a job as a Paris tour guide and who must learn about French culture and history to hold her position. Her probe into French history, ironies, and inconsistencies carries readers through the major personalities and figures of French culture and is a key to understanding the French. It reads with quotes, drama, and fictional embellishment but is nonfiction at its best."
